Miller will spend six months at the same place.

Although both were equally guilty in the offense charged, the fact that this is Miller's first appearance in court while Wheelock has appeared several times on different charges, accounts for the difference in the length of the sentence. Some time ago Arthur Culver accused Wheelock of robbery by assault but was unable to furnish sufficient evidence and recently, Wheelock was brought up in court on complaint of his wife who accuses him of sexual and inhuman treatment.

Although Wheelock has been watched by the police for some time, they have been unable to catch him "with the goods" until the suit case episode. Even in this, he protested his innocence and weakened only when it was shown that the evidence against him was overwhelming.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

HAVE given some of the questions that I thought any girl who stood hesitating "where the brook and river meet" would do well to ask herself in regard to the man who stands beckoning her onward.

Here are a few more.

Are you alike in your tastes?

"The attraction of opposites" is one of those half understood phrases that do a great deal of harm in the world. "We don't like at all the same things," I heard a girl say the other day, "but that is a good sign—the attraction of opposites, you know." That is a big mistake—the difference should be in disposition, not in tastes. Of all foundations for a happy marriage I think congenial tastes about the best.

Are your ages compatible?

Everyone knows the danger in a man's marrying a woman much older than himself, but many people seem to think it is a good thing for a woman to marry a man ten or fifteen or even twenty years older than she is.

I think that is almost, if not quite, as undesirable as the other way. He will be getting over all his enthusiasms just as she is entering upon hers. And there is nothing more fatal to comradeship than such a difference in point of view.

A difference of not more than two or three years either way seems much the best, although, of course, you must remember that of a man and woman the same age the woman is usually from three to five years older, and that some people are much older than others of the same age.

Does he like children?

Is he kind to animals and do the children and the dumb creatures like him?

Dickens says, "I love little children and it is not a slight thing when they who are fresh from God love me."

I agree with all my heart. I would not trust a man from whom my dog shrank or of whom babies were afraid.

"Children and dogs see souls," you know.

Is he of a jealous disposition?

Don't be misled by the flattery of jealousy. Before you marry you may think it an ornament, but afterwards it is sure to become a galling chain. If you take the trouble to notice I think you will find that in from one-third to one-half of the marriages that are chronicled in the newspapers jealousy takes some part.

Jealousy in a lover may be rather flattering.

In a husband it's—well a shorter and uglier word.

Think twice before you marry a selfish man, and ten times before you marry a jealous one.

And now, if "he" stands most of these tests well, and if on top of all that you can say with no suspicion of a doubt in your mind, "I love him and he loves me"—I don't believe you need hesitate one instant longer. And if he fails them? Well—are you fond of big risks?

PRETTY WEDDING AT HOME IN EVANSVILLE

Miss Gladys M. Mencham United in Marriage to Ernest Kleinmuth at High Noon Thursday.

Evansville, Dec. 23.—The marriage of Miss Gladys M. Mencham and Mr. Ernest Kleinmuth was celebrated at high noon today at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Mencham. The Misses Pearl Kleinmuth and Elsie Kutzko were the bridesmaids and the groom was attended by his brother and cousin, William and Louis Kleinmuth. The bride wore a becoming creation of cream silk and carried white carnations. The ceremony took place in the parlor which was beautifully decorated in white flowers and Mrs. Stanley Veltz of Allen played Schubert's wedding march as the bride party took their places beneath a cluster of large white bells. The Rev. Kohlhepp of this city read the marriage service. About thirty guests enjoyed an elaborate dinner served in five courses immediately after the ceremony, the dining room being prettily decorated in white, red and green ribbons, and Christmas bells. The couple will reside with Mr. Kleinmuth's parents until the first of March, when they will go to housekeeping on a farm which the groom recently purchased of Seymour Partridge.

Mrs. V. A. Axell is suffering from a broken arm as the result of falling on an icy sidewalk. The accident occurred about five o'clock this evening near the Congregational church.

T. V. A. Grillich lost her gold watch and fob bearing the initials "R. S." Tuesday, between her home and town. George Acheson has bought the property on Church street formerly owned by Chas. Burdham and recently sold to the Congregational church.

Frock of Serge

A pretty frock of gray-green serge showing a little effect and a bodice much on the order of the once-popular jumper accompanies this. The jumper portion is finished by wide bands of taffeta in self-tone, and this also finishes the tunic, stimulating a new under-bodice of the material trimmed with soutache, and this in turn is worn over a glimpse of cream novelty net. The trimming is completed by the use of several groups of taffeta-covered buttons. With this is worn a velvet hat of dark green with the points of the wide brim rolling in tricorn shape. The sole trimming is a novelty feather of cream-colored marabout.

The Liver and Courage.

The belief that the liver's condition has an effect on one's courage has left as a verbal monument the term so common in campaign times—"white livered." In "Trollius and Cressida," for example, is found: "Reason and respect make livers pale and bloodless defeat." Again, in "Hamlet": "But I am pigeon livered and lack gall to make oppression bitter."

Fish That Cold Cannot Harm.

Some varieties of fish can stand any amount of cold without harm. Perch will live in ponds which are frozen practically solid in every hard winter. The whitefish of Canada, caught through holes in the ice, have been picked up frozen so stiff that they would break like brittle sticks, yet when carefully thawed out showed signs of life.

GIANT TRACTION MERGER.

INVOLVES $70,000,000

First Step to Unification of Chicago's Entire Street Car System Is Taken.

Chicago, Dec. 27.—It became known last night that all the surface traction lines in Chicago south of Madison street, and a line running to Whiting, Ind., were merged into one ownership. The deal involves $70,000,000 and a syndicate of local financiers have purchased J. Pierpont Morgan's holdings in Chicago's transportation lines.

Mr. M. C. Cobe, vice-president of the American Realization Company of Chicago and Philadelphia, who engineered the gigantic merger, in making public the terms by which the local syndicate acquired the South side holdings of the Morgan syndicate, declared that it was but a preliminary step toward the merger of all the important public utilities companies of Chicago, involving an capitalization of the man-made parent company of between three hundred and four hundred million dollars.

The newly formed syndicate is the Chicago City and Connecting Railways Company and has for its directors eight financiers, only two of whom are actively connected with the other great public utilities companies which ultimately may be merged under one holding company. The eight directors are James B. Forgan, John J. Mitchell, Samuel Insull, John A. Spoor, Edward Morris, Thomas E. Milton, E. K. Bolnot and Mr. M. Cobe.

MURDERER LYNCHED BY MOB.

White Slayer Is Taken from Jail and Hanged.

Hurley, Va., Dec. 27.—Following the killing here on Christmas eve of Samuel Baker and the serious wounding of his wife and two children by the former's enemy, Henry Pennington, a mob of 100 citizens took Pennington from an improvised jail, where he had been incarcerated under heavy guard, and hanged him to a steam pipe.

Pennington, who had been drinking, picked a quarrel with Baker and shot him while the latter was on his way to a Sunday school Christmas tree with his wife, his two children and a friend named Meadows.

Seeing that he had killed Baker, Pennington started to run away. Mrs. Baker called after Pennington and implored him to help her take the body home.

The mob worked and Pennington went back to the spot where his victim lay dead. Bent upon avenging the deed, Mrs. Baker grabbed Pennington's pistol from his pocket and shot twice at him, wounding him in the hand and thigh. Pennington recovered possession of the pistol and then shot the woman and attempted to kill the two children and Meadows, who was running away. It is alleged.

WHISKY DECISION BY PRESIDENT

TAFT DECIDES EVERY BOTTLE SHALL SHOW INGREDIENTS OF CONTENTS.

KILLS ROOSEVELT ORDER

Rectified, Redistilled or Blended Products May Use Name—Conclusions Reached by Royal Commission of Great Britain Are Followed.

Washington, Dec. 27.—President Taft rendered the final decision as to the definition of the word "whisky" in connection with the construction of the pure food law, with reference to labeling, and holds that whisky made of neutral spirits is whisky when reduced to potable strength. The president passed nearly the entire day in writing his decision.

Covers Many Details.

The president covered other details in his decision and gave directions for the proper branding of various varieties of liquor, holding among other things that Canadian Club whisky and whisky made from a mixture of "straight" whisky and "neutral spirits" may be called a blend.

According to the instructions under this decision "straight whiskies" will hereafter be branded as such, but the brand may be accompanied by the legend "aged in wood" and whisky made from rectified, distilled or neutral spirits will be branded so as to make known the principal ingredient. In addition, if they so desire, manufacturers of straight whisky may also use the word "bourbon" or "rye," as the facts may warrant.

The definition of "blends" is not made broad enough to include neutral spirits made from molasses and reduced to potable strength. This article, the president says, cannot be labeled as whisky; it is rum.

The decision follows the lines of the conclusions reached by the royal commission of Great Britain and reverses the verdict of former President Roosevelt, former Attorney General Honaparte, Solicitor General Bowers, and Dr. Wiley, chief of the bureau of chemistry. The Roosevelt-Bonaparte-Wiley order denied the use of the word "whisky" in branding to all liquor except "straight" whisky—the whisky which is aged in charred oak casks. Mr. Bowers extended the use of the word to liquors made of "rectified" and "distilled" spirits. President Taft goes a step farther and includes blends and whisky made from "neutral spirits."

TRIES TO SLAY WIFE; SUICIDES.

Policeman Who Attempts to Arrest Farmer Has Narrow Escape.

St. Joseph, Mich., Dec. 27.—A tragedy here ended in the suicide of one person and injury to another. At least one policeman owes his life to a miracle of fate.

Thomas Holman, a retired farmer, 72 years old, killed himself after a fruitless attempt to slay his wife. Holman's little granddaughter was hurt slightly in jumping from a second-story window in escaping from her crazed grandfather. Policeman Delvin Fisher was knocked down by a bullet which grazed his temple.

Holman, cornered in the upper story of his son-in-law's house, fought off a posse of officers and citizens and at daybreak sent a bullet crashing into his own head. He died five hours later at a hospital in Benton Harbor.

Women Hurt in Church Riot.

Washington, Ind., Dec. 27.—In a riot at the General Baptist church, one mile west of this city, Willis Ellis, Ed Herron and Toller Chapel were probably fatally injured, while many women and children who used the windows to escape were hurt. Four policemen were sent to quiet the rioters, but the officers were disarmed. Claude, Arnold and Robert Holton and Chester Turner were arrested later.

Wireless Messages Go Far.

THE RECALL.

The act on which the legal opposition to the Wisconsin law, which provides for the commission form of government, hangs its opposition, is "the recall."

This "recall" feature, for which they are contending, provides that any elected official may start out and secure a petition demanding that the mayor be recalled, and another man elected to take his place.

The "recall" is an element of weakness, which the law-makers were wise in recognizing, as any unprejudiced mind will agree, when the question is carefully considered.

In the first place it attaches a string to the man elected to serve the people, and any one of half a dozen cliques or special interests can decapitate him, whenever disposed to pull the string.

The man who succeeds him has had his warnings, and he soon becomes the servant of the clique, instead of a public servant, and his administration is a farce.

To make the matter perfectly plain, consider the saloon business. The opinion prevails generally that fifty odd saloons is more than the city should have. Dues Moines, Iowa, with a population of 108,000, has one hundred, or about one to every 1,000 population. Janesville has, in proportion, more than three times as many.

The brewers and distillers of the country recommend that one saloon to every five hundred people is enough, and the saloon men themselves know this to be a fact, and they should be the last men to oppose it, or any other regulation which the city may adopt.

But what are the facts? About the same number of licenses are granted every year, and the council is powerless to prevent; powerless principally through lack of disposition, but results are the same.

Suppose that a commission had charge of the administration, and an ordinance should be passed that next year but thirty licenses would be granted. How long would it take to get out a petition demanding the recall of the mayor, and what would his successor be worth as a saloon reformer?

The law anticipates that good men will be elected and given ample time to develop and establish a policy that will benefit the city, and to do this they must have the backing and moral support of the people.

This fear of not being able to elect good men, is simply an excuse, and not worth considering. It would not be difficult to select the names of three hundred taxpayers in the city, divide them up in groups of three, vote for them blind, and show that results would be as good as the average aldermen elected by wards.

Someone who ran short of objections, suggests that the commission should be placed under bond, probably for good behavior, as there is nothing else to bond them for. The city treasurer is the custodian of the people's money but there is no more reason why a commission should be bonded than a council, or board of directors, or a stenographer in an attorney's office.

The Wisconsin law is all right, and should be adopted at the coming election. It is the product of careful thought and study on the part of men who had at heart the best interests of municipal government throughout the state.

PHILANTHROPY AT HOME.

A resident of the Fifth ward met a friend on the street last Friday morning, and said to him, "John, I want half a dollar."

John hesitated, when his friend said: "Oh! I don't want to borrow it, I just want it."

The half dollar was produced with the question, "What do you want to do with it?"

"Come along," said his friend, "and I'll show you," and together they entered a store.

"I want a couple of pairs of boy's shoes and some good, warm stock-socks," said the philanthropist, and while they were being put up he told the following story.

"This morning before breakfast a boy came to my house to borrow some matches to start the kitchen fire. His matches were red with cold and his toes stuck out of a pair of old shoes."

"I said to him, 'My boy, where's your stockings,' and he said, 'I haven't any, but I'm not very cold.'"

"Then I picked him up and carried him home, to find that the family had no fuel and but little to eat. I started the fire, and then went over to the wood-yard and bought some wood and my wife and daughter are over there now fixing up some clothes for them."

"On the way down town I stopped in a saloon and told the story, and the proprietor gave me ten dollars and told me to buy them something to eat, and when I got the shoes and stockings the family will be comfortable."

A homely little story, but an incident from real life, with all the romance left out, and so near home that it is full of local interest.

The philanthropist, a poor man himself, was one of God's every day heroes, and while so much is said at this holiday season about the multitude of big-hearted people scattered over the country, it is gratifying to know that Janesville is represented.

In the same ward another kind-hearted man, whose life is clouded with sorrow, kept up his old-time custom of a Christmas tree for the poor children of the city, and many little hearts were made glad because of his thoughtful consideration.

There were many other instances of unselfish giving, right here at home, which helped to make Christmas bright, and Santa Claus a reality.

These are the things which break down all barriers, and make all men akin. Broader than church or creed is the universal brotherhood which stands out in bold relief at Christmas time and inspires faith and confidence in humanity.

This is the last week of the red cross stamp campaign, and many stamps are yet unsold. Every merchant in the city has them. The Gazette ordered 45,000 at the commencement of the campaign. If all are sold it will mean $450 for the anti-tubercular fund, but unless the sale is heavy this week, many stamps will have to be returned. If every letter mailed before New Year's day, bears a red cross stamp, there will be no trouble in disposing of the entire lot.

Some of the Washington contingency is finding it difficult to realize that Taft is president, but the fact will dawn on their consciousness in due time, and they may decide to set down and be good. The magnanimity of the country, which are out on the warpath, are likely to discover that they have hit off more than they can slitherize, and their cause is hopeless.

The merger, consummated last Saturday, which puts the Chicago traction companies under one management and means a capitalization of $70,000,000, is the best thing that has happened to the city in many a day.

Concentration is necessary to progress and development, and while abuses should be regulated, congress can ill afford to handicap a system which the country demands.

Now for the annual house-cleaning, and a fresh start for the new year. The outlook was never more promising. The blanket of snow which covers the land, is called the "poor man's fertilizer," and will contribute largely to the crops of 1910. Kindness of all kinds promises to be good, and employment at good wages is assured. The new year will be a year of opportunity. Let's get ready to improve it.

If the recommendations of Postmaster General Hitchcock are adopted, magazine publishers may be called on to help make up the postal deficit. Many of these publications have no excuse for existing. They are devoting energy and space to a campaign of disloyalty to the administration, and sowing seeds of discontent and unrest.

Do your Christmas shopping early, do it early, mother dear, buy those gift cigars for father, get the fancy ties for brother, all hand painted, nice and sweet, while the holly's in the windows and the janericks all the street. Buy the cook an inkball poker, lift the milkman from the dumps, get him, mother dear, some ribbons—pink ribbons for his bright and early, mother dear; we must buy cut class and chin for our brothers' Christmas cheer; we must do our shopping early, but the toys with planned pains, so that dearest little Willie may curl up and be a saint, look me up, my dearest mother, put my state while late on straight; we must hasten, we must hurry, or we'll be—about too late! ere the cold-shoulder of love, and the four-cent tomatoes greeting all are gone for ever more. So let's hustle, dearest mother, let us swiftly hit the pike; to our Christmas shopping early let us make a gentle hike.

Heart-to-Heart Talks.
By EDWIN A. NYE.

WHY?
This is a pitiful tale of little Jan Stoeck, victim of the mine-disaster at Cherry, Ill.

Jan, son of a father killed in the mines, was aged fourteen. He was a sensitive child who read books beyond his years and passionately loved music.

But Jan was the man of the family at fourteen!

The morning of the awful fire in the mines Jan was in bed sick, and the doctor said he must stay, but he knew the rent was just due.

So the brave little fellow plucked his thin lips together and went to the shaft, the miner's lamp lighting up his pale little face and his poor lunch in his little tin bucket.

"We must not give up, little mother," he said as he kissed her goodbye.

And who?

Leaving against the shaft house that fateful day, nobbing in her old brown shawl, the mother walked:

"My God! I kissed him and sent him to his death! I sent him to die in that hell hole below there for $1.12."

Motherlike, blaming herself.

And when they got her to her home in the little shack, while the fiery inferno raged below, both Barbara Stoeck, robbed now of both husband and son by the Moloch of the mines, said to a woman reporter:

"Never again shall I be able to draw a full, long breath. Something clutches me when I look into the face of a child. I can see little Jan, my baby boy, lying there in the passage with his head resting on his arm and on his dead face the patient, loving smile he always had for us."

The poor woman grew hysterical and then, half crazed, talked proudly of how Jan read the big books.

"It was the old family coming back in him. Once, in the old country, his father's folks were nobles. Or late years they have been working people. Jan went to his death smiling, like many a man of his race before him."

"Is it not an unutterably sad mystery?"

Why should such a noble spirit as Jan's be blown out by the hellish flames of the pit when others, gross, sordid and unheroic, are permitted to quietly burn to their very sockets?

To say there is no kind Providence that permits it to be so is to give over to blank despair. We are shut up to the belief that all mystery has a meaning.

One thing can be done. The laws of Illinois say no boy under the age of sixteen shall be permitted to work in or about a mine. The laws must avenge the death of Jan Stoeck.

Filling a Tooth

means saving a tooth and is a matter of great importance. The process is as interesting as it is important. The dentist first cleans out all decay from the hollow in the tooth, then packs the cavity with filling material—usually silver—and finally taps it gently to make the edges tight and firm and exclude all further decay.

The average life of a filling is said to be about 7 to 8 years, but I have seen fillings O. K. after 30 years of service.

The Optimist's Corner

Daily Helps to Health and Happiness
By GEORGE P. DILLER, A. M., M. D.

Every woman desires to retain as long as may be her youthfulness of face, form, and movement, yet the true secret of such enduring youth is by no means universally recognized. A woman is happy just in proportion as she is contented. The sun has a way of changing the spots upon which it shines. Especially is this true of our land, where one is up to-day and down to-morrow, and vice versa. The wisest woman is she who trusts in a to-morrow, but never looks for it. To sit down and wish that this might be, that that would be different, does a person no good. It does her harm, in that it makes her dissatisfied with herself, unpleasant to her friends, and makes her old before her time. Happiness is not always increased in proportion to large success. This may sound like an old saw, and I think it is, but there is a world of wisdom in many an old proverb, just the same. Contentment is a wonderful thing to cultivate. There would be fewer premature old women in the world if it were given more of a trial and it became a more universal quality in womanhood.

KENNEDY'S WOUND HEALING NICELY

REAL ESTATE MAN SHOT LAST FRIDAY WILL RECOVER.

NO REASON FOR ASSAULT

At Time of the Shooting Babcock and Kennedy Were on Way to Lawyer's Office to Close Transaction.

John E. Kennedy, the real estate dealer who was the victim of Oliver Babcock's murderous assault Friday afternoon, is reported to be resting easily today and unless unforeseen complications arise, the physician who is attending him anticipates a speedy recovery.

Although it was reported that two of the bullets had taken effect, it was found later that one of them had just grazed Kennedy's right shoulder without inflicting a wound. The other bullet, which entered his back just below the right shoulder blade, was deflected from its course and was removed Saturday.

It is plain from the contents of the note which was found in Babcock's coat after the tragedy, that the would-be murderer had made careful preparations for the deed and that he realized that he was mentally unsound. The note itself is still in the possession of District Attorney J. L. Fisher who refuses to make its contents public, but it has been ascertained from those who read it after the tragedy that it seemed to be the product of a diseased brain. It was enclosed in a plain white envelope, which was addressed simply to "Janesville, Wis.," and "To whom it may concern."

In the letter itself, interspersed with requests that his wife be notified and other details, Babcock had set down that he knew that he was crazy but that no one else knew it and that he intended to kill Kennedy and then take his own life.

It would seem from this that Mrs. Babcock's statement that her husband had once been an inmate of an insane asylum was well founded.

At the time that Babcock made his attack upon Mr. Kennedy, apparently the most friendly of relations existed between the two men. They had talked over a prospective transfer of some farm property purchased by Babcock through Kennedy, for a cash consideration and two lots in the city and were on their way to Attorney John Cunningham's office, where the papers drawn when Kennedy stepped into Babcock's office to have word for some men he expected to meet.

Babcock followed Kennedy into the building and shot him just as he was about to open the inner door. He said nothing and as Kennedy drew himself up again, the effect of the shot in the ribs having knocked him down, he faced Babcock with the smoking revolver pointed at his head. Reaching up he knocked the gun away and at that Babcock turned and ran out of the building and down River street where he afterwards killed himself.

The deed by which Babcock transferred his property for northern farm lands was closed some time ago and it was not until a few days ago that Mr. Kennedy learned that Babcock had offered to take the farm of Babcock's hands and it was for this purpose he made the appointment with him in the afternoon of Friday.

HOLIDAYS PASSED WITHOUT TROUBLE

No Fires or Troubles of A Serious nature Except Drunkenness Marked the Yule-Tide.

Christmas eve as well as Christmas day, save for the deplorable shooting affray Friday afternoon, passed off without any serious disturbance. There were no fires, and except for a few cases of drunkenness, little for the police to attend to.

There was but one case of shoplifting noted during the holidays and this was settled to the satisfaction of the managers of the Woolworth five and ten cent store where the theft was attempted. This happened in Phil. Godey's store on W. Milwaukee street during the celebration Christmas eve. During the festivities, the plate glass door in the ice box was broken and the falling pieces cut one of the customers severely about the head.

ARREST GOKEY FOR VIOLATING THE LAW

Proprietor of Saloon On Academy St. Is Charged With Keeping Open On Sunday.

Charged with selling liquor and keeping his place of business open on Sunday, Joseph E. Gokey, proprietor of a saloon on Academy street, appeared in municipal court this morning and pleaded not guilty to the charge. His trial was set for Jan. 6. It is alleged that Gokey, the interior of whose saloon is completely shut in by screens and curtains, forcibly ejected two customers early Sunday afternoon and that the disappointed couple immediately registered a complaint with the police. An investigation of the premises followed and it is thought that enough evidence has been secured to warrant a conviction.

Too Much Science.

A YOUNG man with a broken nose, had taken a seat in the trolley car, and the other twenty of us were looking at him and wondering how it came about, when he made a half bow to include all of us and said:

"I notice that there is considerable curiosity about it, and I will cheerfully explain. Two weeks ago I had taken my fifth boxing lesson, and the professor was pleased in any that there were not 20 men in America who could stand up to me in a scrap."

"I took you for a world's champion as soon as you came in," said a tall man opposite.

"I kicked my hat on my ear and took a walk around town to find someone willing to knock a chip off my shoulder. By and by a young fellow who had come to town to buy a pair of boots bumped into me and refused to apologize. It was my opportunity. I squared off and, what do you think?"

"And you put him to sleep right there, of course," interrupted the tall man.

"Not a bit of it. He ducked and grabbed me by the body and threw me over his head, and when I came down he pulled me to me and kicked me into the hospital."

"That I thought you said you were a graduate of the art?"

"Yes I did, and so I was, but the professor had forgotten to mention me never to tackle a man who knew nothing about the game, and so I got whipped. Yes, my nose is broken, and I shall never be handsome again, but I shall know more—I shall know more."

FORTY YEARS AGO

January 27, 1869.—HORRIBLE TRAGEDY. A man shot and killed a few hours ago in the other arm. The weapon was an old musket, which was loaded with buckshot, and the muzzle of it was probably not more than three or four feet from Roberts, and the result was that the charge, which took effect in the left shoulder, tore it to pieces badly, nearly cutting off an artery, causing the blood to flow profusely. Indeed he must have bled to death in a short time had not the flow been stopped by the physicians who arrived. He was informed that he could live only a short time and said the deed was a cold-blooded murder; that he gave no prevention for the assault whatever. After the perpetration of the crime Stowe raved about the premises expressing satisfaction at his deed, but afterward came and threw himself upon the body of Roberts, kissing him and saying he was the best friend he ever had.

Thurman Roberts, the victim of this diabolical murder, was 22 years of age, unmarried, an inefficient, hard-working man, a thimble with trade. He sometimes visited the saloons but was by no means a hard drinker. He has a father, mother and sisters living in the city and a brother at the east.

When the officers attempted to arrest Stowe he objected decidedly and said he was able to take care of his own household. It took two of them to bring him to terms but he was finally brought to a sleigh and later lodged in jail. He has not yet been brought up for examination.

New Transformer.
The use of batteries and their attendant inconveniences in the operation of annunciator and bell-ringing systems is dispensed by the invention of a new transformer, by which the necessary current is secured from the ordinary lighting circuits. As the transformer has no moving parts, once fixed it will thereafter require no attention. It is adapted to operate on circuits running from 100 to 130 volts, and is provided with taps giving 6, 12 and 18 volts, so as to meet the requirements of various styles and sizes of bells and buzzers.

Automatic Holating Record.
An automatic electric holating record, including signals as well as trips, is kept by a new instrument used in a mine of South Africa. As the engine or skip moves up or down, a small disk carrying a needle travels along a strip of paper ruled into time spaces, and thus marks down the time of the trip. Each ring of the signal bell perforates the paper, the number of perforations showing whether the holating has followed the signals.

WHEY FOR THE INVALID.
Whey is the part of the milk remaining after the curd has been separated. It contains practically all the mineral elements of milk, which are all the system needs, milk sugar, a small percentage of lactic acid, fat and albumen, most of the fat and albumen being in the cheese or curd. Whey was a part of the uniform diet of "Old Parr," the Englishman, who lived more than 150 years. Whey has been much used as a cure for intestinal and stomach disorders. It serves better than buttermilk where acid is not well borne, but cannot be used long as an exclusive diet. Toast and figs may be used, preferably at a different meal, by the invalid, although it is comparatively compatible with toast. Whey can be made by adding lemon juice to fresh, or better, freshly skimmed and sterilized milk, but rennet is preferable.

The Island of Regeneration

By Cyrus Townsend Brady

"To love you?" queried Langford in hot and bitter jealousy. "That was one thing I learned myself," answered the man. "And yesterday, you might call it chance, but I call it God," said the man gravely, "discovered to me the love we bore each other and that is all."

"Are you—forgive the question," said Langford, addressing the woman, and there was agony in his voice, "as you were when I left you?"

"I am a different woman, thank God!"

"Different?"

"Yes, but in the sense in which you mean the question, I am just as I was, save that I love this man."

"But you had no right to love him or any one," burst forth Langford bitterly.

"And do you reproach me with that?"

"Do!"

"Think of your wife."

"She's dead," said the man hoarsely. "I have searched the world for you. I have come back here to make amends, to own my fault, to marry you before God and man, to take you back, to do for you as long as I shall live all that a man can do."

"Woman, Shall I Throw Him Down and Kill Him?"

was prepared for an attack. He dealt a blow at the oncoming figure with all the force of his arm, and skill and training enabled him to put into it more than one would have fancied from the slightness of his figure. He struck the man fairly in the chest. The blow apparently might have staggered an ox, it had no effect whatever upon the other. In an instant Langford was caught as if in the grasp of a whirlwind. He was lifted from the earth and held high in the air. For one tense moment, unable to struggle, he hung upon uplifted arms. He heard a voice beneath him cry:

"Woman, shall I throw him down and kill him?"

"No," she said, "Your words have no appeal for me. They awaken no response in my heart. I love this man, not you."

"Have you thought," cried Langford meaningly, "that you are not free to love any one but me?"

"By heaven!" cried the man springing forward, "this time I will be answered. Why is she not free to love me or any one?"

"Because," said the other resolutely, "before she came into your life she belonged to me."

"Belonged to you?"

"Yes, to me."

"And by what tie?"

Langford hesitated. He was furiously wrought up. He saw that it was necessary to make a break, a rupture between these two. He thought that if he could do so, his own self might be the better for it. He was in deadly earnest and therefore he took the risk. How frightful it was, he had no conception. He did not understand that he was dealing with a primitive man. How should he? He did not understand what passions slept beneath the surface. And perhaps if he had understood, to do him justice, for he was a fearless man, he would have ventured just the same.

"She was my mistress!" he said through his teeth.

"Shame! Shame!" cried the woman, and then fell silent, clasping her hands and waiting for what might come. The hour of her travail was upon her.

Langford flashed a look at her and then his gaze reverted to the man. The expected outbreak did not instantly come.

"Mistress!" said the other. "I know not what that means, but 'tis a word of bitterness. Say further and more clearly your intent."

"Why, you fool!"

"If that calleth his brother a fool shall be damned," said the man.

Langford stared at him.

"Where have you lived," he cried, "that you don't know the meaning of words?"

"I have lived nowhere but here and I have known no language but what this woman has taught me."

"Yet she could easily have taught you the meaning of that word," the other responded with cruel, ruthless meaning.

"I will take the lesson from you."

"You will have it then!"

"I will."

"She was my wife, but without the blessing of God or the law of man. I owned her, do you understand? I possessed her body and soul."

"Not so!" said the woman, but the protest was lost.

"You lie!" cried the man, swiftly leaping upon him.

No tiger ever sprang with such swiftness or such ferocity. Langford said. What the cruiser was doing in those seas, how happened she to be there were things as yet unknown, but that she was there was apparent. She had approached the island from the other side, and had sailed around it. Her men had observed the encounter on the shore, which seemed to be between natives and persons from the yacht, which was in plain view a little farther out to sea, and the gun had been fired to call attention to the power of the United States.

This put an entirely new face on the whole affair. Matters were taken out of the hands of the parties to the quarrel. The law had come to the island. The islander did not, could not know it, but his latent antagonist realized it immediately. So did the woman. At Langford's command, his men, much bewildered at the scene they had witnessed, went back to their boat. He himself presently followed after, and stood upon the strand awaiting the approach of the heavy man-of-war cutter which had been put away from the white cruiser's side.

"Man," she said, softly, "this is what I had to tell you."

He nodded. A hollow groan burst from his lips.

"His mistress," he muttered, brokenly.

"I would not have had you learn in this way, and now that you have heard so much, you must hear more," she went on, not sparing herself, though she might have justly resented the word. She was dealing with more serious things than words now, bitter though they might be. "That ship, which is the ship of our country, stands for law as his for license. I was more sinned against than sinning. When you have heard all, then you shall judge. This is the test."

"Would God that it had never been laid upon me," said the man, hoarsely.

"Would God that the beacon had not been lighted on the hill!"

"Nay," returned the woman, gently, "that's past praying for. Decision rests with you, but you must not pass it until you have heard the whole story. The world holds me stained, polluted, it may be said, but I am not the sinner that it thinks me or he portrays."

"You said it was true," doggedly cried the man.

"Yes, but not all true."

"And I had him in my hands, and still he lives."

"Won't you hear me?" pleaded the woman.

CHAPTER XVI.

Confronted.

At those appalling words the strength seemed all at once to go out of the man's arm. Heavily, but not with purposeful ungentleness, he slowly set Langford down upon his feet on the sand.

"You brute!" cried the other man, trembling with impotent anger.

There was nothing that he could do personally. If he had possessed a weapon he would have killed the islander, but he was unarmed and helpless. Therefore he turned toward the beach and called to his men. They had seen the sudden attack and were already running across the sands.

"No," said the woman, "that word belongs to you. You have told the truth, and yet not all." She turned to her companion of the island.

"Man," she said, "you have loved me. You must hear what I have to say."

"You have said that it was true," he muttered, hoarsely. "And the man who has said it lives. Lives!"

His voice rose to a cry. He turned toward Langford again. But by this time the six blue jackets who made up the girl's crew were close at hand.

"Halo!" cried Langford to the coxswain, "seize that brute yonder, and—"

The woman was still wearing the knife that she habitually carried. She used it often and kept the blade bright and of keen edge. She whipped it out on the instant, her civilization falling from her like a discarded garment, when the man she loved was threatened.

"Let no one lay hand upon him," she cried, alighting to defend him. "I swear that I will drive it into my own heart if he be touched."

"Give me the knife," said her companion, suddenly.

Before she could prevent him, he whipped it out of her hand.

"And now," he said, springing toward the huddled group of sailors, the bright blade lifted, "which of you will touch me?"

The men shrank back. There was something so furious in the aspect of the man, his power was so evident and his temper as well that none wished to precipitate the fray.

"I appeal to you," said the woman, turning to Langford, "send back the men. A moment since I saved your life. At a word from me he would have thrown you from him and broken your back. He generous. You must. And this man shall give me a hearing. You are safe from him, I promise you."

What might have been the result of this appeal can never be determined, for at that moment a new factor entered upon the scene, a factor whose presence was as surprising and unexpected as it was determinative. From out to sea, yet near at hand, came a muffled detonation, the roar of a heavy gun. Around one of the headlands that rose on that side of the island there swept the white sides of another great ship beside which the yacht, imposing though she was, was a toy. It was the woman who saw it first.

"Look!" she cried. "A ship of war, a cruiser. See, from her staff the flag of the United States. This land is American. I claim it by right of discovery. Lay but a hand upon this man, and I will have you hanged for murder, Langford. They see us there. Their glasses have searched the shore. They have seen this encounter. That gun was a warning. A boat puts off. 'Thank God, we are saved from you!'

Things had transpired even as she

CHIEFS HELD IN CUSTODY

PRESIDENT MADRIZ ORDERS ARREST OF TWO OF ZELAYA'S AIDES.

WILL REVOKE FRANCHISES

New Executive Shows Strong Hand in Taking Hold of Nicaraguan Affairs—Finds Country on Verge of Bankruptcy.

Managua, Nicaragua, Dec. 27.—President Jose Madriz is taking hold of affairs in this republic with a strong and firm hand and is receiving the plaudits of his countrymen.

Zelaya left him the legacy of an empty treasury, and soon after President Madriz had publicly announced, in effect, that the country was practically on the verge of bankruptcy, the arrest of Jonquin Passos, Zelaya's son-in-law, and Ernesto Martinez, Zelaya's last finance minister, was ordered.

They are now in the hands of the authorities, charged with misappropriation of funds, failure to register government bonds and the circulation of unsigned paper money.

Zelaya Reaped Vast Sums.

Francisco Buesi, who has displaced Dr. Julian Irujo as minister general, is preparing a decree establishing a commission for the purpose of revoking the franchises under which a score of monopolies, given to individuals by Zelaya, have been operated.

These monopolies poured into Zelaya's purse vast sums of money, for, while they were ostensibly in the hands of others, it was to the former president that the greater portion of the returns was transferred.

Banished Men Are Recalled.

Santos Ramirez, Zelaya's chief of telegraph, has also been arrested.

He is charged with having sent a telegram in the name of President Madriz, ordering the government troops to abandon their strong positions.

Gen. Anastasio Ortiz, Benito Chavarria and Paulino Godey, who were banished by Zelaya in 1896, have been recalled by Madriz.

Mexico City, Dec. 27.—The Mexican cabinet, with ex-President Zelaya of Nicaragua on board, arrived at Salina Cruz last night. The vessel made no attempt to enter the harbor, but anchored outside.

SCIENTISTS MEET AT BOSTON.

American Association for Advancement of Science in Annual Session.

Boston, Dec. 27.—Scientists from all parts of the country were assembled in Huntington hall this morning when the retiring president of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, Prof. T. C. Chamberlin, called that body to order for its sixty-first meeting. He at once introduced the president of the meeting, Dr. David Starr Jordan, president of the University of California, who took the chair. Addresses of welcome were delivered by Dean W. C. Sabine of Harvard university and President R. A. Macdunnell of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Dr. Jordan made fitting response.

The various sections then were organized in separate halls and the addresses of their vice-presidents were begun. These will be continued tomorrow and Wednesday afternoons.

At 8:30 o'clock this evening the retiring president will deliver his address which will be followed by a reception in the public library. On subsequent evenings there will be dinners, smokers and other affairs. A large number of affiliated societies are holding their annual meeting here.

"LANKY" BOB IS KNOCKED OUT

Bill Lang of Australia Scores with a Right-Hander.

Sydney, N. S. W., Dec. 27.—Knocked down by a right-hand blow to the jaw, Bob Fitzsimmons, one time champion of the heavyweights, lost his fight to Bill Lang, champion of Australia, at Rush Cutters bay stadium.

But a few more seconds of careful guarding and Fitz might now be champion of Australia. Nothing less than a draw was coming to the old man up to the fatal blow as a result of his careful work. Throughout the early rounds, and even at the opening of the twelfth, Fitz, by his clever defensive work and scientific counterpunching, was holding his own with his more youthful antagonist.

Ohio Hotel Clerks in Convention.

Springfield, O., Dec. 27.—The Ohio Hotel Clerks' association began its annual convention today in the Arcade hotel with an unprecedented attendance. The mayor welcomed the visitors and the business of the association was disposed of to leave the way clear for the first meeting of the national association, which will be held tomorrow. That affair will wind up with a luncheon for the men and a theater party for the women.

Liner Crippled in Mid-Ocean.

Queenstown, Dec. 26.—The Leyland Line steamer Cuban, with her rudder lost or steering gear useless, has made her way to Liverpool, having used the steamship Hoholman of the same line in tow as a rudder.

Heads U. S. Indian Schools.

Lawrence, Kan., Dec. 27.—H. B. Peck, superintendent of the Haskell institute here, has been appointed national supervisor in charge of the work of educating the Indians, with headquarters at Washington.

THE EAST IS STORM-SWEPT

DEATH SUFFERING AND DAMAGE RESULT FROM SNOW AND WIND.

BOSTON HAS TIDAL WAVE

Several Lives Are Lost—Railroads Are Badly Interfered With—Telegraph Wires Are Down—Property Damage Runs Into Millions.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 27.—Great damage, much suffering and several deaths resulted from the terrific energy displayed by the northeast storm of snow and gale throughout New England.

The gale drove a tide into Massachusetts bay, which nearly equalled that of the famous storm of 1851, the wet snow prostrated wires, telegraph, telephone, electric light and trolley, and railroad trains were stalled. Three persons lost their lives in Everett and Chelsea by the sudden rise of the tide.

Storm Is Extensive.

The storm's destructive powers were unusually extensive and severe. Its center was somewhere off Nantucket, but the gale swept over the greater portion of New England and was accompanied by a heavy fall of snow.

In this city the tide went across Atlantic avenue on the water front, and filling hundreds of cellars, caused an estimated damage of over $1,000,000.

Fallen wires for a radius of twenty or thirty miles around Boston and throughout southeastern Massachusetts and Rhode Island made it necessary to cut out completely electric lighting plants in those communities that were served by the overhead system. Large cities, such as Cambridge, Somerville, Lynn, Brockton, Providence, Fall River and New Bedford, were in darkness except for the light afforded by the full moon.

Seventy-Mile Gale at Price's Neck.

Newport, R. I., Dec. 27.—The wind attained a velocity of over seventy miles an hour today, and at high tide the waves broke against the life-saving station at Price's Neck.

On Nantasket beach, in Hull, the damage to property is estimated at $100,000.

Heavily, the summer home of President Taft, is cut off from communication with the outside world by telephone and telegraph.

New York City Snowbound.

New York, Dec. 27.—New York and its environs were practically storm-bound yesterday for the first time this winter. The west wing of railroad service was almost wholly cut off, wire communication in every direction was crippled, metropolitan streets were blocked with snow, and shipping, even within protection of the harbor, suffered considerable damage.

A small tidal wave swept into the harbor and with occasional fury dashed over the battery sea wall and flooded many cellars. Two vessels were driven ashore.

Three Hungry Men Die.

Three deaths in the city were charged to the severity of the storm. The victims were men who had spent the night vainly seeking shelter and food and finally succumbed to exposure. More than fifty persons were injured by falls.

Seven-Inch Fall at Cleveland.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 27.—The heaviest snowfall in seven years has impeded traffic in Cleveland, leaving many of the outlying sections snow-bound.

Connecticut Is Stormswept.

New Haven, Conn., A swirl of snow, driven by a 40-mile wind, swept over Connecticut, bringing conditions which are likened to the famous blizzard of 1888.

Street Car Crew Drowns.

Seymour, Conn., Dec. 27.—A trolley car jumped a switch alongside of the Naugatuck river during the storm and, plunging down the bank, crashed through the river ice. Motorman Fred Beard and Conductor Marcus Donovan were drowned. The live passengers escaped.

Ice Block Ohio.

Evansville, Ind., Dec. 27.—A monster ice gorge, 15 feet high and extending over a mile, is reported at the mouth of Wolf's creek, several miles above this city. The gorge is growing in size hourly and promises to take in the whole bed of the river. If the present weather continues several days longer the lower Ohio river will be one solid mass of piled ice from Louisville to Cairo.

Trains Held Near Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Dec. 27.—A snowfall of 16 inches, which drifted in places to a height of ten feet or more, completely tied up for hours all steam and trolley traffic in this vicinity. The Pennsylvania Railroad Company announced that eight trains have been held at Pottsville, Pa., 38 miles west of this city, for five hours.

Piet Defeated by Referee.

New Orleans, Dec. 27.—Leonard Lauder of Los Angeles was given a decision over Henri Piet, once champion of France, at the Royal Athletic club in a ten-round bout. Piet out-fought Lauder at every stage of the fight, which was fast and furious throughout. Piet weighed 133 pounds, and Lauder tipped the beam at 135.

TO TRY WOMAN ON BLACKMAIL CHARGE

Mrs. Jeannette Stewart-Ford Is Placed on Trial—Warriner to Be Witness.

Chelmsford, Dec. 27.—Mrs. Jeannette Stewart-Ford was placed on trial here today charged with having received stolen money and with blackmail.

Charles L. Warriner, the convicted local treasurer of the Big Four Railroad Company, in whose accounts there was a shortage of $513,000, is scheduled to be the star witness.

Mrs. Stewart-Ford, both individually and through her counsel, has announced that she will fight to the limit the indictments against her and also has broadly hinted at revelations of a startling nature. There is, as a consequence, widespread interest and expectancy with respect to the case. There is likewise no lack of interest regarding Warriner's testimony, as he has not yet told his story on the witness stand.

ALBERT A LUKEWARM CATHOLIC

Papal Secretary Warns Against New Monarch of Belgium.

Paris, Dec. 27.—The Petit Republicain prints a resume of an alleged cipher dispatch sent by Cardinal Merry Del Val, papal secretary, to the nuncio at Brussels, saying that the accession of King Albert has created inquietude in Rome, where he is considered a lukewarm Catholic with antichristian, even socialistic sympathies.

The cardinal therefore urges the papal nuncio to seek to surround the king with a Catholic entourage in order to complete the work begun when the Catholics assumed power in 1881. This would be mooted if King Albert gave hope to liberalism and socialism.

According to the same authority Cardinal Merry Del Val instructed the nuncio to confirm the marriage of King Leopold to Baroness Vaughan in order to tranquilize the Catholic colonel.
